1. The pattern of estimated spending in title II stems from the caps on spending specified in the legislation. The legislation would cap total compensation payments at $2.775 billion. However, the legislation would limit the amount available to pay claims through June of 2016 to $875 million. CBO estimates that the legislation would make additional budget authority of about $1.9 billion available to pay claims in July of 2016.

2. Positive numbers denote an INCREASE in the budget deficit; negative numbers denote a DECREASE in the deficit.

3. Positive numbers denote an INCREASE in revenues.

4. All effects of the legislation would be "on-budget".

The amendment would establish a program for health care benefits for eligible emergency personnel who responded to the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks and eligible residents and others present in the area of New York City near the World Trade Center. The legislation also would provide compensation payments to certain individuals for death and physical injury claims resulting from the attacks. The amendment would extend for one year certain fees on L and H-1B nonimmigrants that currently expire after fiscal year 2014, and would impose a 2 percent excise tax on payments made to certain foreign persons by federal agencies to obtain certain goods or services.
