H.R. 6933 would require the Department of Energy to report quarterly to the Congress on the use of the department's authority to reduce or eliminate cost-sharing requirements for various research, development, and demonstration projects. Based on the cost of similar reports, CBO estimates that implementing the bill would cost $1 million over the 2022-2027 period; any spending would be subject to the availability of appropriated funds.

The CBO staff contact for this estimate is Aaron Krupkin. The estimate was reviewed by H. Samuel Papenfuss, Deputy Director of Budget Analysis.
